How SC House Calls Can Support Your Facility

Patients in skilled nursing facilities and assisted living communities are often those with the most complex medical needs. Therefore, they can benefit most from readily available professional care. If your skilled nursing facility (SNF) regularly has specialized physicians, nurse practitioners, or other skilled clinicians on site, it can provide significant benefits to patient's families.

Advantages For Your Campus

Nursing facility care has been changing over the last 10 years to more long-term care patients with increased complexity. These changes have resulted in an increased need for highly trained, committed, and available health care practitioners. But exactly how do we help you keep your facility operating as efficiently as possible?

- Specialized clinicians on your campus
- Reduce hospitalizations and keep your census stable
- Obtain better patient outcomes
- Reduce medication costs
- Empowerment to operate above DHEC standards
- Reduce lost staff time and pay
- Residents will be staying with you longer

By taking advantage of the benefits LTCHS can offer, you will be able to add value to your campus and ensure quality care for your patients.
